John Donald Robb

(1892-1989)

Dean Robb had a long and distinguished career as an attorney, teacher, administrator, conductor, performer, ethnomusicologist, and foremost as a composer. He touched the lives of all those who knew him and through his music future generations will also be enriched.

He was Dean of the College of Fine Arts and Professor of Music at the University of New Mexico. He composed the opera Little Jo, the musical comedy Joy Comes to Deadhorse, concerti for piano and viola, four symphonies, orchestral works, over eighty songs and settings of folk songs, a number of chamber music pieces and more than sixty-five electronic works. His orchestral works have been played by orchestras both in the United States, and abroad under noted conductors, including Hans Lange, Guy Frazer Harrison, Maurice Abravanel, Victor Alexander, Eleazar de Carvalho, Leonard Slatkin, Souza Lima, Maurice Bonney, Ricardo del Carmen, Gilberto Orellana and Yoshimi Takeda. The culmination of Dean Robb's interest in and study of folk music was the publication in 1980 of his authoritative book Hispanic Folk Music of New Mexico and the Southwest. He was the recipient of numerous honors and grants including recently the honorary degree of Doctor of Music by the University of New Mexico and honorary membership on the Board of Directors of the New Mexico Symphony. A number of his works have been recorded, most recently his Requiem Mass for organ, chorus and soloists. In the over twenty year history of the University of New Mexico's Composers' Symposium, the focus has been exclusively on performance of music by visiting composers and also on faculty composers from the University of New Mexico. Because two of this year's visiting composers are also known as provocative and extremely insightful music theorists, an opportunity arose to deepen the technical discussion of contemporary music. So it was decided also to invite several theorists who specialize in music theory and analysis of twentieth century music by American composers. By happy coincidence, last semester the first graduate level post-tonal theory course was held at the University, and this particular Composers' Symposium gives two of our graduate students a chance to present their work before a vital group of composers and scholars.

BRIAN ALEGANT is Assistant Professor of Music of McGill University, where he has taught since 1990. His doctoral dissertation, "The Seventy-Seven Partitions of the Aggregate: Analytical and Theoretical Implications," was completed at the Eastman School of Music in 1993. His current research interests center on motivic transformation (a research project he is working on with Don McLeon), twelve-tone theory and analysis (particularly the works of Schoenberg, Webern, and Dallapiccola), and the music of Britten and Barber. His publications include "The Even Partitions in Twelve-Tone Music," co-authored with Robert Morris, "A Model for the Pitch Structure of Webern's op.23/1," and "Unveiling Schoenberg's op.33b" (forthcoming). Currently, he is reviews editor for Music Theory On-Line.

ABBIE CONANT studied with Dee Stewart of the Philadelphia Orchestra, Per Brevig of the Metropolitan Opera, John Swallow at Yale University, and Branimir Slokar at the Cologne Conservatory. She has degrees from Temple University and The Juilliard School. She is internationally active as a soloist, and was principal trombone of the Munich Philharmonic for 13 years. She has recorded an internationally acclaimed CD of trombone and organ music, and has been described by the International Trombone Association Journal as "in the first ring of world class trombonists". Abbie is a founding member of The Wasteland Company, and since 1992, Professor of Trombone at the prestigious State Conservatory of Music in Trossingen, Germany.

DORA HANNINEN holds a B.A. in Music from the University of Virginia Charlottesville; and an M.A. in Music Theory from the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, where she is currently completing a Ph.D. in Music Theory. Her dissertation is titled: "A General Theory for Context-Sensitive Music Analysis: Applications to Four Works for Piano by Contemporary American Composers." She has presented papers on aspects of pitch contour in "Tableau" by Milton Babbitt, and of pitch-class ordering in Anton von Webern's Quartet Op. 22 and Variations for Orchestra Op. 30. The latter is forthcoming in "Theory and Practice": Journal of the Music Theory Society of New York State.

Born in Los Angeles in 1933, GORDON GETTY has lived in San Francisco since 1945. He graduated from the University of San Francisco in 1956 with a B.S. degree in English Literature, having meanwhile studied piano with the late Robert Vetleson and voice with Easton Kent. Following six months of active duty in the army and four years in the family businesses, he studied music theory (in 1961 and 1962) at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. Today, Getty is a frequent Visiting Composer at colleges and universities across the country, and holds Honorary Doctorates from the University of Maryland, Pepperdine University, the University of California San Francisco, the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, and the Mannes College of Music.

Honored as an Outstanding American Composer at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, DC in 1986, Gordon Getty continues to win high praise for performances of his music in major concert halls across the United States and overseas – in New York, San Francisco, Washington, Los Angeles, London and Vienna. His works have also been heard at major festivals around the world, including Tanglewood, Aspen, Newport, Miami, the Schubert Festival in Washington, the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico, and “The Festival of Two Worlds” in Spoleto, Italy, where his opera Plump Jack was performed in concert version to critical acclaim on July 4, 1989.

Plump Jack has had a number of performances as a work in progress and in semi-staged concert versions, by such distinguished orchestras as the San Francisco Symphony, the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra and the BBC Philharmonic in London, among others. A staged workshop production of Plump Jack directed by Richard Digby-Day of London at the Hopkins Center, Dartmouth, in late November of 1989 preceded a fully staged production by the Marin Opera in San Francisco’s Palace of Fine Arts Theater in 1990.

Getty’s Emily Dickinson song cycle, The White Election, was released by Delos on CD in a performance by Kaaren Erickson to extraordinary international acclaim. The recording followed highly praised concert performances by Miss Erickson and others presented by the National Gallery of Art in Washington, the Morgan Library and Alice Tully Hall in New York, the Etherredge Center in Aiken, S.C., and Herbst Theater in San Francisco. The entire cycle was presented by the European Mozart Academy in Krakow, Poland in 1994, and at the White Nights Festival in St. Petersburg, Russia in 1995.

Victorian Scenes, the composer’s choral settings of poems by Tennyson and Housman, and Poe’s Annabel Lee, with orchestral accompaniment, had their first performances by the Los Angeles Master Chorale and Sinfonia, directed by John Currie, in the Chandler Pavillion at the Los Angeles Music Center.

Three waltzes for piano and orchestra - Tiefer und Tiefer, Madeline, and Ehemals were performed by Andre Previn and the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra in October, 1988. In 1991, orchestral arrangements of the Three Waltzes were performed both at Tanglewood under the baton of Zuohang Chen, and by the California Symphony conducted by Barry Jekowsky. In April of 1993 the work was featured in a memorable performance by the San Francisco Conservatory Orchestra at Davies Symphony Hall.

Getty’s chamber works include March from the White Election (for brass quintet, percussion and soprano, presented at Tanglewood in 1991), and the Ancestor Suite, a work for string quartet performed in 1992 at the Schubert Festival and the Mannes College of Music, in 1993 at University of New Mexico’s Composer’s Symposium, and in 1994 at the University of Texas, Austin. Five short piano pieces published by Belwin in 1954 are now available as Homework Suite. Three Diatonic Waltzes, Tiefer und Tiefer, Madeline, Ehemals, Waltz of the Ancestors, Gothic Waltz, and Zwei Landler round out his compositions for piano. The composer has also penned a new setting of the traditional Welsh folk song “All Through the Night”.

All works by Gordon Getty are now published by Rork Music, Theodore Presser Company, Distributor.

RICHARD HERMANN holds degrees from the Eastman School of Music, Yale University, the New England Conservatory and Drake University in the areas of Music Theory, Composition, and Music Education. He is published as a theorist (Music Theory Online, Theory and Practice, Sonus, Journal of Musicological Research and Winds Quarterly and was a contributing editor to the volume of essays entitled Concert Music, Rock, and Jazz Since 1945) and as a composer (Ken Dorn Publications). His compositions have been recorded by National Public Radio and performed in major musical centers such as Beijing, Boston, Madrid, and New York.

He has lectured on musical topics from the seventeenth through twentieth centuries before professional organizations and for major conferences such as the American Musicological Society, the Society for Music Theory, Austria 996-1996: Music in a Changing Society, the Music Theory Society of New York State, and the New England Conference of Music Theory.

He has also served as a board member, chair, or member of the program committees for the Arnold Schoenberg Institute, Music Theory Society of New York State and the Rocky Mountain Society for Music Theory.

Previous to joining the faculty of the University New Mexico, he taught at the Eastman School of Music, Ithaca College, Yale University, and the Berklee College of Music.

WILLIAM OSBORNE studied with George Crumb in Philadelphia and with Franco Donatoni at the National Academy of Italy. Among his awards are two from the American Society of Authors, Composers, and Publishers, a Doctoral Fellowship to Columbia University, and a prize from the Munich Theater Commission. His works are performed regularly in Europe and America, and he is the founder and artistic director of the Wasteland Company.

LARRY POLANSKY (b. 10/16/54) is a composer, theorist, teacher, writer, and performer. He is widely known for his instrumental music and his pioneering work in live interactive computer music and computer-aided composition. In a review of his solo CD, The Theory of Impossible Melody, Kyle Gann of the Village Voice called him "the heir apparent to the Cowell/Nancarrow/Tenney genius tradition."

Polansky's instrumental and electronic music has been performed, recorded, and published widely. He has been a guest composer at the Darmstadt New Music Festival, Telluride Composer-to-Composer, Japan's Sapporo Festival and at many other festivals, universities and musical events. His two solo CDs on Artifact Records have been critically acclaimed, and his music is recorded on a number of other labels. He has received numerous commissions and awards, including a recent commission by the WDR Koln to compose a new work for percussion trio, live electronics and guitar, which was performed on the Musik and Computer Festival in June 1994, along with works by Stockhausen, Xenakis and others. In March, 1994, the Internationale Gesellschaft für Neue Musik Zurich did a major, multi-concert retrospective of Polansky's works. Many of his pieces are currently performed on tour with a number of internationally respected musicians. Polansky is currently working on a commission for a chamber music work from Japan's Interlink Festival. For the last five years he has concentrated on major works for chamber ensembles, some involving computer-aided composition (like his widely performed 51 Melodies for two electric guitars and rock band) and some not (like the major piano work, Lonesome Road).

As a performer, he has worked in a variety of musical capacities. During the 1980's he frequently gave performances of his own live interactive computer music. He is one of the three authors (with David Rosenboom and Phil Burk) of HMSL (Hierarchical Music Specification Language), a widely used real-time artificial intelligence language for experimental music composition and performance.

Larry Polansky is currently on the faculty of Dartmouth College, teaching in the graduate program in electro-acoustic music as well as undergraduate theory and composition. He is Co-Director, with Jon Appleton, of the Dartmouth Bregman Electro-Acoustic Music Studio. From 1980-1990, he was on the faculty of Mills College in Oakland, California, teaching composition, computer music, theory, orchestration, performance, and American Music, and for several years directed the Contemporary Music Performance Ensemble there. He was also on the research staff of the Center for Contemporary Music at Mills, and was the Interim Director in 1988.

Polansky is co-founder and co-director (with Jody Diamond) of Frog Peak Music, A Composers' Collective. Frog Peak is a non-commercial organization that publishes and distributes experimental music of all forms produced by its many member artists all over the world. Frog Peak Music is an artist's run collective in the tradition of American independent composer/publishing, from Billings to Peter Garland's Soundings Press.

His principal composition teachers were Leslie Bassett, Ross Lee Finney, Aaron Copland, Philipp Jarnach, and Goffredo Petrassi.

He won first prize in the 1955 National Federation of Music Clubs' Young Composers' Contest for a "Sonata for Violin and Piano," the Louisville Symphony Orchestra award in 1956 and first prize in the 12th annual George Gershwin Memorial Award Contest for an orchestral work by a young American (or Canadian) composer in 1957. This prize included a performance in Carnegie Hall by the New York Philharmonic under the direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos of the First Symphony.

He has been the recipient of a scholarship to the Berkshire Music Center, a Fulbright scholarship to Hamburg, Germany, and an Italian government scholarship to study at Santa Cecilia Academy where he received a diploma and a prize. His "Two Impressions" for large orchestra were performed in Vatican City by the Radio Televisione Italiana Orchestra in 1964.

In 1968, Sherwood lived in Cairo, Egypt, where he was commissioned by the Ministry of Culture to compose background music for a film. From 1969 to 1971 he lived and composed in Beirut, Lebanon, and played jazz piano during intermissions at the main movie theater. For the year 1971-72 he lived in Athens and the Cyclades Islands in Greece. Then from 1972 to 1980 he lived in Kenya, East Africa, composing music and writing advertising poetry. While there, he composed the music and text of the "Kenya Coffee Cantata" for chorus and orchestra, dedicated to the late president Mzee Jomo Kenyatta. Unfortunately, the president passed away before the work's premiere by the Nairobi Orchestra and All Saints Cathedral Choir in July, 1979 at the Kenya National Theater.

1980 to 1982 was a period of travel in India, Nepal, Sri Lanka, Malaysia, Europe and the United States. From 1983-87, Sherwood resided in Paris and since then has divided his time primarily among Paris, India, and southeast Asia, with trips to Mexico and Central America. In 1988, he received a Helene Wurlitzer Foundation grant for summer study in Taos, New Mexico.

In May, 1994, a recital of his works was presented at the School of Music of the University of Costa Rica. He has recently purchased a home in Wales, but continues to live the life of an itinerant musician much of the time.

Since 1988, Shultis has lectured extensively both in the United States and in Europe on the creative work of John Cage. Published results include his Ph.D. dissertation, "Silencing the Sounded Self: John Cage and the Experimental Tradition in Twentieth-Century American Poetry and Music" (1993) and an article "Silencing the Sounded Self: John Cage and the Intentionality of Non-Intention" in The Musical Quarterly (Summer 1995).

YAYOI UNO is an assistant professor of music theory at the University of Colorado in Boulder. She is a native of Yokohama, Japan and immigrated to the U.S. in 1972. She completed a Ph.D. in music theory at the Eastman School in 1994 and her dissertation focused on the comparative analyses of selected works by Boulez, Bobbitt, Cage, and Xenakis. Composition at UNM

(A Brief History)

Music and its creation have held the interest of students and faculty since the founding of the University of New Mexico in 1889. President Tipton (1901-09), who loved music but admitted that he could not carry a tune, compiled the university's first song book in 1905. President Gray (1902-12), a native of Scotland, was a prominent linguist and novelist, and also composed. Several of his compositions were presented by the UNM Entertainers, a men's choral group, while on tour in New Mexico, Texas, Kansas, and Colorado.

Though the Music Department became an academic department of the University in 1910, it was a while before composition was given serious consideration as a course. Composition was encouraged by members of the faculty, but most students who composed did so because of a desire to write. President James Fulton Zimmerman was the driving force behind organizing the College of Fine Arts, and the Music Department, previously part of the College of Arts and Sciences, became a member of the Fine Arts College. This eventually made composition available to students.

Byrd Danfelter, who was part of the music faculty and acting chairman at one time, also had a music school in Albuquerque where many of the programs were given. A review of these and other programs lists compositions by Adelina Timofeyew, Arthur Loy, and Walter Keller. Former chairmen Grace Thompson and Lena Clave enhanced and diversified the course offerings of the Music Department, as well as encouraged the creative aspects of music. During this period (1938), Walter Keller was hired to teach piano, harmony, and counterpoint.

Benjamin Britten, who was in the United States at the time, was approached about being chairman, but declined. In 1941, John Donald Robb did much to expand the music curriculum to include composition. Notable students included John Lewis, Caroline Parkhurst Lloyd, Alan McKerrow, and Halim El-Dabh. Dean Robb brought Nadia Boulanger, Ernst Krenek, and Paul Hindemith to the campus to lecture and give master classes. (Krenek's lectures were carried over KOB Radio.)

The first composition recital was on April 7, 1943. Since then numerous such programs have taken place. Many former students have continued as composers located in various parts of the United States and Europe. A few are: John Cheatham, University of Missouri; Halim El-Dabh, Kent State University; Peter Lieuwen, Texas A & M; Jeffrey Stolet, University of Oregon; Alan Schmitz, Alaska Pacific University; William Osborne, München, West Germany; James Galloway and Michael Mauldin freelance in Albuquerque.

Walter Keller, who became chairman in 1967, also taught composition. His successor, Dr. William Seymour, did much to foster the composition program. George Lynn was hired as a visiting lecturer in composition in 1971. In May of that year a concert of student compositions was presented. The following year, Dr. William Wood was hired as associate professor in composition and theory. Composer Norman Lockwood, his teacher, was guest of the department and a concert of his works and of student composers was held April 25-26, 1972. From that date on, an annual symposium has been held in the spring of each year; William Wood and Darrel Randall were co-chairs. In succeeding years, honored guests were Ned Rorem, George Crumb, Vincent Persichetti, Max Schubel, Karel Husa, Gunther Schuller, and David Raksin.

In 1980, Karl Hinterbichler and Scott Wilkinson became co-chairmen. The program was enlarged to include composers of regional, national, and international importance. Honored guests have included Lukas Foss, George Rochberg, Thea Musgrave, Mario Davidovsky, Ernst Krenek, David Baker, Lous Harrison, John Harbison, and John Cage. The 1989 Symposium, as a part of the university's centennial celebration, honored alumni and friends (a total of 40) of the Music Department, with special honors to John Donald Robb (1982-1989), John Lewis and Michael Colgrass.

A competition for students in composition, senior and graduate, was initiated by Dean Donald McRae in 1977. The winner receives a cash award and a performance on the Tuesday afternoon concert. Concerts have recently been named and that concert will bear the person's name for all future concerts. Monday night is known as the John Donald Robb Concert; Tuesday night, The Gordon Getty Concert; and Tuesday afternoon, The Alumni Concert. Much has taken place in the past hundred years of the university, and we have every hope and belief that the next hundred years will be as exciting as the past.

Special thanks to Charlemaud Curtis, Barbara Johnson, Chairman Van Winkle, and Dean Robb for their assistance in preparing this history.
